Rother District Council Public Spaces Protection Order Review

Rother District Council is reviewing its public space protection order for Rother. The order allows the Police and council staff to issue on the spot fine for defined types of anti-social behaviour if they are a particular concern for the community. Earlier in the year we asked parish and town councils for information related to the review. All responses were reported to our Cabinet.

We wish to invite Brede Parish Council to give any further views on the current order and if it needs any additions. This is because anti-social behaviour in public spaces might affect the activities of the council, businesses and residents. Secondly, it is later in the year with a more normal return to work and schools. Thirdly, we have some possible additions we would like the council to consider. You can read the current order and our suggested options on our website : Review of Rother's Public Space Protection Order – Rother District Council

We welcome any measurements or facts and figures that you have available but anecdotal evidence will be accepted. What you tell us will be considered by the Council as part of its review of the order.

The name of Brede Parish Council and some, or all, of your response will be published in reports or appendices and may be discussed at meetings that are held in public. The names and contact details of individuals responding on behalf of an organisation will not be published but that information will be kept by the council and may be shared within the council in relation to this subject. All information will be kept in compliance with data protection and privacy regulations.

Please send your response by Friday, 19 October 2021 by email to consultations@rother.gov.uk or write to:

RECOMMENDATION: Brede Parish Council will discuss what response is required from Brede and whether a separate meeting is needed to discuss it with the clerk then submitting the collective response from Councillors.
